

Plan big.

Emtriva—the revolutionary medication for the treatment of HIV—was invented by Emory scientists.

This little pill changed the world.

In the 60s, when a car company asked you to “think small,” they were being cheeky. At Emory, we’re turning the tables and inviting you to “plan big.”

But we know that life-changing impact comes in a variety of packages. And there is no limit to your imagination.

So plan big and shape Emory’s future.

Your planned gift will not only establish your legacy, it will ensure ours. Emory can do remarkable things thanks to you.

Success starts with a plan, made possible with a gift from someone with the imagination to plan big.

Like you.

Contact the Emory Office of Gift Planning and let’s discuss your plan.
